Lived experience of domestic abuse. Vengeful ex husband that lied to the authorities in England the Ombudsman found the child services in England guilty of injustice. My family had to seek refuge in Scotland. Despite telling Authorities in England about concerns of abuse during child contact I was forced to send my daughter against threats of removing my daughter and imprisonment about 7 years later the Police investigated and has told my ex to never contact us, in my view 7 years too late my child now has mental conditions. I am willing to share my experience.

To protect others from the abuse my family suffered though I would like more help for abuse survivors to rebuild their lives and careers.

Q2. Do you think legislation is required, or are there other ways in which the proposed Bill's aims could be achieved more effectively? Please explain the reasons for your response.

Abuse needs strong applied legislation against the perpetrator and needs to be strong enough to protect the victim. I have suffered as despite there being laws in England such as stalking they were not adequately applied.

This needs to go further as those taken to court. This should also be applied you falsely accuse domestic abuse.

Fully supportive

Please explain the reasons for your response. Please include any views you have on the list of policy details set out in bold on page 26 of the consultation document.

There needs to strong policed rehabilitation and this needs to be proven at the end of training. I have heard abusers say that these training session can be a meet up for abusers to talk and support each other in their behaviour.

Domestic abuse costs the country more than policing it strongly. Loss of talents, increased health costs associated with abuse, missed education etc

Do you think the proposal could impact in any of these areas? (If you do not have a view then skip to next question)

Please explain the reasons for your answer, including what you think the impact of the proposal could be, and if there are any ways you think the proposal could avoid negative impacts?

This could make a stronger more compassionate society where all people are protected from this terrible crime

General

Q10. Do you have any other additional comments or suggestions on the proposed Bill (which have not already been covered in any of your responses to earlier questions)?

The law needs to be robust extensive and effective; being enforced by the police, judiciary and authorities. Scotland is becoming a leading light for those who want to escape abuse but needs to get stronger.
